We have been hearing more and more of late about our declining foreign markets, due to the efforts of our American free traders to make capital out of the depression by claiming it was a result of the passage of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill. Such efforts are of course little more than childish, as anyone who will take time to analyze the situation can soon see. In the first place our exports were declining before the Smoot-Hawley bill was passed, and they have continued to decline, not because of worldwide conditions. Part of the decline is due to the lower values of the commodities exported and part is due to the fact that the stagnation of world business has made it impossible for our customers abroad, whether consumers or manufacturers, to use as much of our produce as in normal times. This has been as true of countries in South America, against which we have no tariffs, as in Europe where there is always less demand for our finished products than our raw materials.

Nobody has yet been able to make out a good case for the theory of lowering our tariffs to increase our trade abroad. That this is true can be gathered from the fact that in every major campaign for a generation in which the tariff has been an issue, the free traders have lost. It is difficult to convince the American people, most of whom are producers, that it would be wise to open up to cheap and unfair competition, the richest market in the world, in an effort to gain across the seas a market which exists principally only in the imaginations of the free traders themselves.

Americans consume 90 per cent of what they produce, and there is a reason. The reason is the American standard of living which gives every American, no matter how humble, the right to expect necessities and semi-necessities which would be regarded as only designed for the wealthy in every other country of the world. Our automobiles for all of the people, our radios, our iceless refrigerators and various other household necessities, are abundant proof of the foregoing statement. In what other nation of the world is the ordinary citizen equipped with such modern conveniences as these? And as our productive genius improves new sources of demand from the people come into view.

There is no such market in Europe and will not be in this generation at least. In Europe the workers live on a different scale. The theory of cheap production still holds because the producer has his eye on the foreign market and has no sympathy with the American ideal of a big market at home. He is always convinced that there is greener grass in the next pasture, and he knows there is much greener grass in the United States, if he could only invade it with his cheap commodities produced at something little more than starvation wages.

It is true that European

STREET CAR SERVICE
TO CAMPBELL TO BE DISCONTINUED SOON

The Railroad Commission in a decision rendered today authorized the Peninsular Railway company to abandon service on its San Jose-Campbell-Los Gatos line between the intersection of Lincoln avenue and Willow street in Willow Glen, and Rinconada station at the city limits of Los Gatos. The decision gives the railroad permission to remove its track on ten days notice to the public.

In its decision the Railroad Commission discusses the matter as follows:

"A major portion of this line is constructed along public highways, one of which is the main state highway No. 5, between San Jose and Los Gatos. At the present time the State Highway department is contemplating the widening and repaving of this highway and when this work is done it will be necessary that the Peninsular Railway company rebuild its tracks.

"An exhibit was also filed showing the revenue and expense of operating this line. It appears that an analysis of all of the revenue from all passengers carried on this line during a 60-day period from November 17, 1931, to January 16, 1932, was made, and the total operating revenue for the period was $1,988. The estimated operating expenses during the same period for this line was $3,070; the net loss from the operation during the period being $1,082.

"Peninsular Railway company has two lines between San Jose and Los Gatos and it is the intention of the company, if the present application is granted, to so arrange its schedule on the line from San Jose to Los Gatos by way of Saratoga, as to provide a service somewhat comparable to that which would be abandoned on the Campbell line. Peerless stages also operate between San Jose, Campbell and Los Gatos over a route which is approximately parallel to that of the rail line it is proposed to abandon.

"Some protest against abandonment of this service was made by users of the service, but it is quite apparent that the service is not patronized and the Commission feels that if the line is abandoned the present users will soon adjust themselves to using other public transportation. Some protest by shippers of eggs and baby chicks from the vicinity of Campbell was made by letter subsequent to the hearing of this application. These protestants stated the service was necessary to the proper conduct of their business, but the Commission is not convinced that these hatcheries will suffer materially if this service is abandoned. Much of this business moves by parcel post and the post office department at Campbell will arrange to properly handle the mail.

"The presence of an electric interurban line within the right of way and immediately adjacent to the pave-

Japan, Having Saved Face by Victory, May Make Peace With China—Lindbergh Baby Kidnaped for $50,000 Ransom.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PROSPECTS for cessation of hostilities in China and for ultimate peace were somewhat enhanced the middle of the week, for Japan had "saved face."

Her forces in the Shanghai area strongly reinforced and under the supreme command of Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa, former minister of war, another tremendous effort to drive back the Chinese army was started, and after many hours of fierce fighting, was reported to have succeeded.

Gen. Shirakawa

Gen. Tsal Ting-sai's Nineteenth route army which had been so bravely resisting the invaders, broke and fled northwestward and westward from the Chapei-Kiangwan line, and the Japanese having accomplished their immediate object, their military and naval authorities ordered the cessation of operations and submitted terms for a truce pending the holding of an international conference on the Shanghai situation.

It was apparent that the Japanese were determined to win a big victory before the meeting of the League of Nations assembly on Thursday. Having accomplished this object, they were in better position to make or accept peace plans. Earlier in the week conversations in Geneva and aboard the flagship of British Admiral Sir Howard Kelly at Shanghai had led to hopes that there would be an immediate cessation of fighting. But the Japanese still insisted on the withdrawal of the Chinese forces before moving their own, and this China refused. In Geneva the council of the league adopted a proposal of Joseph Paul-Boncour for a conference of all the powers directly interested, in Shanghai, and the Japanese government accepted this plan. Sir John Simon, British delegate, announced that the United States would adhere to this proposal. The council made the conference contingent upon a truce, and the fact that the severest fighting of the war followed immediately served to confuse the situation and to make observers in Shanghai skeptical of results.

Dispatches from Tokyo quoted War Minister Araki as declaring: "Even if diplomatic negotiations are opened, we cannot withdraw our forces immediately. It is impossible to do so in dealing with China's undisciplined and treacherous military forces. We can only withdraw our troops after witnessing ourselves that the Chinese forces have been withdrawn definitely to a certain designated point. We can keep our promise, but there is no guarantee that the Chinese will keep theirs."

Notwithstanding the arguments and pleas of certain university presidents and many pacifists, the United States government will not countenance a boycott of Japan, which would be in effect a war measure. Great Britain is opposed to such an economic blockade, and therefore it was predicted that this drastic step would not be voted by the league assembly. The smaller nations were expected to favor the boycott, but it could be sidetracked by the British.

CHARLES AUGUSTUS LINDBERGH, Jr., the twenty-months-old son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, was kidnaped Tuesday evening from the nursery on the second floor of his parents' home at Hopewell, N. J. The police forces of New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and other eastern states were busy on the case within an hour and, with the aid of countless airmen, began an intensive search for the infant and the rash miscreants who had stolen him. Indications were that the crime was committed by a man and a woman and that the kidnapers had fled in an automobile.

The criminals left a note demanding the payment of $50,000 ransom and threatened the baby with death if this was refused. Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were of course ready to pay anything possible to get back their child and the authorities aided them in facilitating negotiations. At this writing it is reported that the return of the baby is expected soon. The kidnaping shocked the nation and the Lindberghs had the warm sympathy of the entire population of the country and the active aid of everyone who could in any way help them.

NOT officially associated in any way with the situation in the Orient, but interesting nevertheless is the fact that in a short time almost the entire navy of the United States will be in the Pacific ocean. Orders issued by the Navy department direct most of the warships in Atlantic waters to take part in the March and April maneuvers in the San Pedro area. The training squadron of the scouting force and the special service squadron, including ten new cruisers and destroyers, will join the scouting force of the Pacific fleet in defense of that part of the California coast from attack by the battle fleet, which was due to start eastward from Hawaii on March 8. A total of 141 warships of all types, including battle ships, aircraft carriers, eight-inch gun cruisers, destroyers, and submarines will participate in the test of the Pacific coast's defensive power.

REPRESENTATIVE CHARLES R. CRISP of Georgia, acting chairman of the house ways and means committee, and his subcommittee for the drafting of the new tax bill completed their work and reported the measure to the full committee, after which it was offered to the house for passage. Mr. Crisp announced that the bill assured a balanced budget by the end of the next fiscal year provided current estimates were not upset.

C. R. Crisp

The measure is expected to provide approximately $1,100,000,000 additional revenue annually through new or increased taxes. The principle feature is the general manufacturers' sales tax, which, by the inclusion of a tax on gasoline sales, should produce $625,000,000 annually. Increases in income, inheritance and estate taxes will bring about $250,000,000. The remaining $225,000,000, or thereabouts, will be raised by excise taxes. A promised cut of $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 in appropriations will bring this revenue program within the limits of next year's budget, it was said.

ECONOMY went by the board when the house passed the emergency road construction bill which appropriates $132,500,000 for federal aid to the states in road building. Supported as a means of relief to the unemployed, the measure passed by a vote of 205 to 109, only 12 Democrats being recorded in opposition. Most of the money is to be allotted to the states by the secretary of agriculture under the provisions of the federal highway act. The federal government, according to the terms of the measure, is to be reimbursed over a period of ten years, commencing in 1938 by making deductions from regular apportionments to be made later under the highway act.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde severely criticized the bill, asserting it would provide jobs for only about 35,000 men and would endanger stable development of the future federal aid program. It was predicted the measure, if it passed the senate, would be vetoed by the President.

QUARRELING over credit for legislative achievements, the Hoover supporters and the Democratic leaders have quite ruptured the bi-partisan alliance for the economic relief of the country, such as it was. Speaker Garner assailed the President, was in turn attacked by Senator Moses of New Hampshire, and the Democrats who hope to see Mr. Garner nominated for President leaped to his defense. Chief of the latter was Senator Tom Connally of Texas. In a fiery speech he lambasted the administration for extravagance and lauded the Democrats for economy.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa interjected a question and brought on himself this withering retort: "The senator from Iowa is a Republican in name only. He is just as bitter an antagonist of the present administration as any Democrat dare be. Yet he is afraid of anything that happens to bear the Democratic label."

In the house of Representatives John McDuffie of Alabama, Democratic whip, declared himself for Garner for President, demanding that his party draft the speaker.

DAY by day Al Smith is becoming more and more a receptive candidate for the Democratic nomination. He has given written permission to his friends to enter him in the Massachusetts primary. Smith carried that state in 1928 and is so popular there that it will be the scene of the real Smith-Roosevelt fight.

One former Democratic senator who seeks to take advantage of this possibly Democratic year to regain his old seat is Daniel F. Steck of Iowa. In announcing his candidacy he outlined views on national issues, advocating tariff revision, a referendum on prohibition and adequate farm relief legislation. Steck was the Democratic nominee in 1924 and was seated by the senate after an election contest with Smith W. Brookhart. He was defeated in 1930 by Senator L. J. Dickinson.

Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator from Pennsylvania against Senator James J. Davis. General Butler said he would run on a bone-dry platform and would have the full support of Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

PRESIDENT HOOVER in a special message to congress asked for legislation that would speed up federal criminal court justice, eliminate flaws in the national bankruptcy act and strengthen prohibition enforcement in the District of Columbia. The President's proposals included:

1. Legislation permitting the United States Supreme court to prescribe uniform rules of practice and procedure in criminal cases for all proceedings after verdicts in the district courts and for the Circuit Court of Appeals so as to shorten the time between conviction of prisoners and their incarceration in federal penitentiaries.
2. Laws permitting an accused person to waive the requirement of indictment by grand jury when the accused admits his guilt.
3. Legislation making valid all grand jury indictments where at least twelve eligible jurors voted for indictment, regardless of whether ineligible jurors voted.
4. Passing of legislation limiting the time for making motions to quash indictments because of disqualifications of jurors.
5. Legislation enabling the attorney general to forego prosecution of children in the federal courts and to return them to state authorities to be dealt with by juvenile courts and other state agencies.
6. Legislation supplementing the prohibition law for the District of Columbia.
7. Amendment of the bankruptcy laws to give debtors protection of the courts in certain cases, to remove cumbersome sections of the bankruptcy laws, to require examination of every bankrupt by a responsible official and numerous other reforms.
8. Legislation creating additional judgeships and federal court personnel to relieve congestion.

REVOLT has broken out in Finland. The rebels are members of the Lapua party, or Fascists, and they have gathered in large numbers well armed, threatening civil war if President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud does not oust all Communists and Socialists from his cabinet. The president's reply was the decreeing of a new safety law that gives him extreme military powers to meet the crisis. It permits the suppression of newspapers found guilty of agitation, dissolving of all demonstrations, search of homes, examination of all persons out of doors and hindrance of armed individuals moving from place to place, with other steps considered necessary to preserve order.

President Svinhufvud

The army and civil guards proved loyal to the government and went out to meet the revolutionaries, and the president decided the leaders of the Lapua party should be arrested if possible. The disturbance was mainly in southern Finland.

LEGISLATION to authorize a complete investigation of the stock exchanges is favored by the senate banking committee and a subcommittee headed by Senator Walcott of Connecticut has been appointed to prepare it. It was the consensus of the committee, Chairman Norbeck said, that all phases of stock market speculation should be inquired into. The activities of the long interests as well as the short interests will be investigated, he said, but it is probable that the bears will receive first attention.

With only five votes in opposition the senate passed the Norris anti-injunction bill for which organized labor has been crying for several years. It sharply limits the cases in which federal injunctions may issue in labor disputes; provides that a person charged with indirect contempt of a federal court shall have right of appeal, and outlaws the "yellow dog" contract—that is, any agreement whereby workers promise not to join a labor union during the term of their employment.

There is no longer any doubt about getting a test vote on prohibition in the house. The petition to bring the Beck-Linthicum bill for state liquor control to the floor has received the necessary 145 signatures, the final name being that of J. J. Mansfield of Texas, a cripple who made his way to the clerk's desk in his wheel chair and affixed his signature as the wets cheered. The test will not come before March 14.

Local Youth Writes Poem To Telephone Operators

Robert Kingery Buell, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Buell, wrote the following poem and dedicated it to the local telephone operators. They are Martha Curran, chief operator and commercial manager; Josephine LaBarbera, Marie Dahlbon, Lois Rice, Winnie Grizzle and Dorothy Knutzen.

THE OPERATOR'S SONG

Quite blue and weary do I get
From listening to this old head-set,
And watching switch-board keys
all day!
Still, I should kick—it brings my pay!

Some voices sigh, some snap; some wheeze—
I answer sweetly, "Number,
please!"
Exasperated I may be
If they persist in calling me!

I long for love and gay romance,
While switch-board plugs return
my glance!
I long to walk by moonlit seas,
But all I say is "Number, please!"

Some voices high, some loud, some low.
Some talk too fast, some talk too
slow;
Some rasp so hard the shivers
climb,
Some say, "Long distance!" some say "Time."

But gosh! I'm rather proud at that
To think I'm stationed where I'm at!
I'm master of the switch-board
keys
And sweetly say, "Your number,
please."

This was the final game of in the matter of foreign trade. They have little or no conception of the American idea which because of our high standard of living is to equalize the cost of production at home and abroad.

Uncle Sam will recover from the present depression, not because Santa Claus brings him a miraculous fat foreign market but because he is tightening up his belt and preparing to look after his own children first. And when Uncle Sam once gets on his feet things will begin to brighten up for the rest of the world. Nothing would so help world confidence as definite indications that business was on the upgrade in the United States.

Eighteen Famous Men ...and your will

A review of the wills of James Oliver Curwood, Asa G. Candler, Judge Elbert H. Gary, Richard Hudnut and fourteen other well-known Americans reveals each individual faced with a different personal or family problem in the distribution and management of his estate.

How each of these men met the needs of his special situation by specific and well-planned provisions in his will, is clearly explained in our handbook, "Interesting Ways to Leave Money."

Call or write for a copy of this interesting booklet. Whether you have made your will or not, we feel sure that you will find it practical and helpful.

tunity for presenting information on the thrilling western sports we offer," he asserted. "We have virtually abandoned all other forms of advertising in favor of the use of paid newspaper space."

Henry pointed to the change in dates for the show which was formerly presented on July 4, to the fact that the greatest cowboys in the world are in California in May and will be here for the show, and to the honors which will be paid Johnny Schneider, Livermore boy, who is cowboy champion of the world, as features of the advertising program.

"Other mediums might enable us to broadcast the date change, but nothing but newspapers can properly present the big features of the show," he declared.

SPRING FEVER

from your car

A SPRING Tonic Tune-up is a good thing for your Ford—and we are experts at prescribing the right medicine and the right treatment for anything that can possibly go wrong in a Ford.

The Ford car has a steel constitution—but heavy carbon deposits, carburetor or distributor out of adjustment, worn-out oil or grease, or unevenly adjusted shock absorbers are enough to make any car feel low.

Let us make a thorough examination. There's no charge for that—and as we fill the prescription ourselves, its cost is very low.

SPRING TUNE-UP

Carbon removed, valves ground! Crankcase, transmission and rear flushed and replenished with full-bodied lubricant. Front wheels repacked with fresh lubricant. Carburetor tuned. Distributor and spark plugs cleaned and adjusted. Fuel line and battery checked.
